Special Events & Keynote

WELCOME REMARKS & PLENARY, FRIDAY, 12:30-2:30, OLD CAPITOL, SENATE CHAMBER.

The Plenary Panel serves as an opening showcase, featuring papers that the program committee found both particularly intriguing and representative of the range of work at the conference.

WILLIAM MORRIS IN ICELAND, SPECIAL EXHIBITION, FRIDAY & SATURDAY, 9:00-4:00, SPECIAL COLLECTIONS, 3RD FLOOR, MAIN LIBRARY.

Items from Iowa's collections illuminate Morris's travels and their later influence, print practices, and the Kelmscott Press.

“Map of Iceland, Collected Works volume 8,” William Morris Archive, <https://morrisarchive.lib.uiowa.edu/items/show/886>.

STEDMAN LECTURE BY ELIZABETH YALE: “HUMAN EVOLUTION IN THE POPULAR PRESS: VICTORIAN WOMEN ON MOTHER LOVE, MUTUAL DEVOTION, AND MORAL MURDER,” SATURDAY, 3:45-5:00, OLD CAPITOL, SENATE CHAMBER

This lecture explores women's contributions to late-Victorian debates over evolutionary theory's implications for human society, focusing in particular on intellectual and activist Frances Power Cobbe and science popularizer Arabella Buckley. Writing for popular audiences, they took on Charles Darwin's account of the evolution of human morality in Descent of Man (1871).

Like Darwin, both women rejected an overly simplistic laissez-faire, Spencerian “Social Darwinism.” Cobbe challenged Darwin, arguing that his naturalistic explanation of morality's origins implied a relativism that dangerously undercut society's moral foundations.

Buckley, on the other hand, partially following Darwin's lead, argued that devotion to others and mutual care evolved within a theistic, yet still Malthusian framework: altruism and love were man's "greatest weapons" in the struggle for survival.

For each woman, moral principles mattered because they fostered moral action—care and effort on behalf of others. In probing the logics through which Cobbe and Buckley linked evolution, moral sentiments, and political and social action, this lecture presents them as thinkers and historical actors with mixed moral legacies.

Elizabeth Yale is Assistant Professor in the Departments of History and the Center for the Book at the University of Iowa. She is the author of Sociable Knowledge: Natural History and the Nation in Early Modern Britain (University of Pennsylvania Press, 2016). She is collaborating with James T. Costa on an annotated edition of Charles Darwin, The Descent of Man, and Selection in Relation to Sex (1871), to be published by Princeton University Press.
